

James Wimberly “The Doctor of Style”

James Wimberly is a man with a BIG vision and an even BIGGER heart for the world of sports and youth outreach. The desire James has to impact today’s youth, through sports, is a result of the gang life and drugs he witnessed and the lack that he experienced while growing-up in one of the toughest inner cities in the United States.

While in high school he was introduced to youth boxing, which kept him focused and out of the gang life and away from drugs. After completion of high school James attended University of California at San Diego, with an interest in journalism. James then further pursued his passion for boxing as a Welterweight Professional Boxer (1981-84) under the management of Rich Marrotta; sports radio personality, and training under Jerry Boyd; writer of the Academy Award winning movie Million Dollar Baby.

After boxing James became the sports producer for KCAL Sports Channel 9 (1989-90) and in (1990-96) produced the Raiders Pre & Post Game Show with hosts Rich Marrotta and former All-Pro Quarterback, Jim Plunkett. In (1999-Present) James became the producer of the Neutral Corner Boxing Show hosted by Rich Marrotta. James is also a sports writer for the LA Sentinel Newspaper (2005-present).

In March 2006, with years of success in sports relations and media, James was introduced as founding partner of 'SportsTech International' the new cutting-edge full-service sports management agency with a focus on athlete relations with a Personal Life Coach centered on emotional intelligence... Human Asset Management.™

James is a devoted husband to his wife Wanda and a loving father to their three children Jawanna, Jashanna and Keyvon. James is also an ordained minister. James and his family reside in Rancho Cucamonga, California.

